The Population Division of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations is established with financial support from the international community for the organization of a series of international meetings on international migration and development. The objectives of the meetings are to discuss issues related to the collection and enhancement of information on international migration and to facilitate coordination of activities within the United Nations system and with other relevant organizations concerned with international migration issues. The meetings will help to provide a forum for the participants from international governmental and other relevant organizations to help in the development of a common approach to the study of international migration and its impact on development.
