

increased expenditures come at a time when many of our governments continue to face tremendous fiscal pressures. Within my own government, for example, we are cutting, right upgrades. My delegation is not convinced that potential alternative funding sources have been exhausted.

But, Mr. Chairman we recognize that at this late stage the Secretary-General will unlikely be