Mr. Chairman,

At the outset we wish to align our reserves with the statement made by the Deputy Director of Iran on behalf of the Non-Aligned Movement.

In addition we welcome the importance being attached to the promotion of the rule of law and the peace in support of which we have resolved to establish a new world order.

We also see it as a reaffirmation of the declaration of the High Level Meeting of the General Assembly on the Rule of Law and its relevance at the national and international levels. It marks the beginning of a new phase in the development of the United Nations system and the world.

Mr. Chairman,

The rule of law is a principle of the international system. It is a principle that is essential for the rule of law capacities at the national level, and it is a principle that is essential for the international system. It is a principle that is essential for the rule of law capacities at the national level, and it is a principle that is essential for the international system. Its focus is on the rule of law, both at the national and international levels.

We believe that the United Nations should continue to provide the necessary assistance to all States to enhance their rule of law capacities. We believe that the United Nations should continue to provide the necessary assistance to all States to enhance their rule of law capacities.

There is therefore a need for the UN to continue to focus on promoting the exchange of good practices and the formulation of common policies. At the same time all actors must refrain from using force to all approaches, approaches that are beyond the scope of the UN system.

Mr. Chairman,

The rule of law is the cornerstone of the international system. It is a principle that is essential for the rule of law capacities at the national level, and it is a principle that is essential for the international system. It is a principle that is essential for the rule of law capacities at the national level, and it is a principle that is essential for the international system.

President and the Security Council have a responsibility to ensure the legitimacy and integrity of the international system.

Mr. Chairman

The approach of the international community to new threats to international security continues to evolve in response to the changing nature of international security. In this regard, the Security Council has a responsibility to ensure the integrity of the international system.

We should continue to work together to address these challenges and promote effective international cooperation. We are committed to this effort.

Thank you Mr.
