

heritage provided in article 2 of that Convention suggests that the matter will be study of relevant domestic and, in particular, constitutional provisions, it should be recalled that the decision to provisionally apply a treaty also depends on the national legal requirements of the State concerned. For this reason, one can find in treaty practice provisions stating that the Contracting States shall apply