This is a key point, since guaranteeing the security and safety of diplomatic missions and their representatives is a duty of all States, with a view to ensuring that diplomats can carry out their functions effectively in the country in which they are accredited and, above all, guaranteeing respect for their human rights, including their right to life, to personal integrity and to freedom.

To date, the records prove that all submitted requests have been met and that the requested security and protection measures were provided by the Salvadoran authorities. In addition, the National Civil Police has been made aware of all cases in which diplomats, their premises and international organizations have been the targets of crime, so that a proper investigation can be launched and any necessary legal action brought before the competent authorities.
