

The question that arises is whether the jurisdiction provided for specific serious international crimes under certain treaties could be converted into a commonly