In this regard, we regret that no new articles have been adopted at the current session. This topic has been included in the Commission's Programme of Work already in 2007. Six reports

We understand the sensitivity and complexity of the topic, as well as the significance of its practical impact. However, we are convinced that, with due regard to State practice in this field, a proper balance between the predicaments of State sovereignty and the fight against impunity could be found.

We hope that during the next session, the Commission will be able to move forward with the topic and to conclude the first reading of the complete set of draft articles on procedural aspects.

I thank you, Mr. Chairman.
