

(New York, - 22 November 2017) The Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide, Adama Dieng, expressed satisfaction at the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) verdict against Radovan Karadžić, who was commander of the main Serb forces in the 1992-1995 armed conflict in Bosnia and allow these crimes to be prosecuted nationally in a manner that is compliant with the highest standards

Today, the Special Advisers said, "we stand with the victims, we honor their sacrifice and we salute their courage. Tomorrow, we continue working so that there is no space for impunity and so that justice can lead to peace and long-lasting reconciliation."
