The search for durable solutions to the often protracted displacement situation in East Africa and the Horn of Africa is a key humanitarian and development concern. This is a regional and cross-border issue, with a strong political dimension, which demands a multi-sector response that goe and Ethiopia host two of the largest Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) situations worldwide at the end of 2019 with 2.6 million and 1.4 million IDPs respectively according to the Internal Displacement Monitoring Centre (IDMC). While 2019 saw some efforts to restore peace t—f an desert locust invasion increasing the likelihood of further displacement this year.

The situation for most IDPs in the region remains often highly politicised making principled action mo difficult and a key urban challenge in Somalia. In Somalia, the government faced a huge transition over recent past, with the formation of Federal Member States (FMS) and the increased presence of l authorities in the National Development Plan 9 (2020 – 2 under the broader durable solutions agenda. The Somali government has also developed signif coordination architecture at all levels of government. Somalia has also adopted an impressive array o policies, including new Social Protection Policy, the National Policy on Refugee-returnees and IDP Interim Protocol on DistriY
