

plafom

V. Virtual Participation

The Summit is looking to maximize leadership from Member States across the breadth of their food systems. The process has been built on the recognition that food systems are multi-sectoral in nature, and that many Member States are therefore actively engaging many ministries, agencies, embassies, other government entities, and non-state actors in their efforts around transforming food systems nationally, regionally, and around the globe.