

5 August 2004

Original: English

---

Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women
Pre-session Working Group

Group, after examining the second periodic report of Algeria (CEDAW/C/DZ/2) formulated the following

observations
with regard to articles 2, 9, paragraph 2, 15, paragraphs 4, 16 and 29 paragraph 1 of the Convention.

Constituted

Family Code and whether this review aims to bring the Family Code in line with the provisions of the Convention, especially regarding matters of marriage, divorce, inheritance and child custody.

4. The report (English version, p. 10; French version, p. 11) indicates that “the Ministry for the Family and the Status of Women was created in June 2002 primarily to complete the process of Algerian women’s emancipation”. Kindly clarify whether other focal points or units dealing with women’s issues exist elsewhere within the governmental framework. Please indicate the percentage of the national budget allocated to the Ministry.

5. What is the relationship between the Ministry for the Family and the Status of Women and the National Advisory Committee on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights in respect of women’s human rights?

Violence against women

6. The Committee, in its previous concluding comments (para. 79) expressed its concern about the absence of legal texts that specifically protect women who are victims of domestic and sexual violence. Please provide an update on the status of the work of the committee established by the Minister of Justice in January 2000 to revise the Criminal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, particularly with regards to the offences of harassment, domestic violence, sexual assault and the definition of rape (English version, p. 17; French version, p. 20), and clarify whether the Government is considering adopting specific legislation on violence against women.

7. What legislative and other measures has the State party taken regarding the provisions of the Criminal Code that excuse the perpetrator in the case of rape of the minor if he is prepared to marry his victim?

8. Please provide information on education, awareness-raising and training measures on violence against women undertaken by the Government for police officers, judges, doctors and the mass media, as recommended by the Committee in its previous concluding comments (para. 80).

9. The report (English version, p. 16; French version, p. 19) highlights the issue of terrorism “which affects all categories of people in Algeria, including women, particularly rural women, who are victims of murder, abduction, rape and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment”. Please describe the efforts made by the Government to stop or prevent the occurrence of such violent acts against women and ensure that proper investigation is conducted to bring offenders to justice.

Participation in decision-making

10. Please provide detailed statistical information about the number of women, as compared to men, in elective bodies at the national and local levels, governmental bodies, and in the country’s foreign service, at all levels.

11. The report (English version, p. 23; French version, p. 27) indicates that “over the past two years ... there has been a considerable increase in the number of women working both in central administration and at the local level as a result of reforms introduced”. Please provide information on the measures taken by the Government to encourage women to become more actively involved in politics, either as voters or as candidates in the various elections.

Employment and economic empowerment

12. The report (English version, pp. 38-39; French version, pp. 45-48) states that “the percentage of women in the labour force was 15.21 per cent in September 2001” and that “employed women are mostly young (over one third are under 30)”. Describe efforts by the Government to increase the presence of women, including women who are over 30 years old, in the labour force, in both urban and rural areas, since the last report and the impact of such efforts.

13. The report (English version, p. 13; French version, p. 15) states that, under article 17 of Labour Relations Act No. 90-11 of 1990, “certain facilities are accorded to married women, such as the option of taking leave of absence to raise a child under the age of five or to look after a disabled child”. Are these facilities also accorded to men in order to ensure that men take on the responsibilities of child rearing to the same extent that women do? Please provide details.

14. Has the Government made an assessment of the Labour Relations Act No. 90-11 of 1990 to evaluate its impact on women, and if so what are its findings? Also, please by the Government since the last report to increase the number of women teachers at all levels, and the impact of such programmes.

20. Please describe the results of the evaluation undertaken with regard to the 1990 literacy programme for women and girls launched by the National Adult Literacy and Education Office, with the support of the United Nations Children's Fund, as described in the report (English version, p. 32; French version, p. 38). Will the programme be extended to those wilayate which have not yet been covered?

21. The Committee, in its previous concluding comments (paras. 71, 73 and 75), expressed concern at the numerous religious principles, cultural patterns, stereotypes and patriarchal values which together keep women in a lower status than men, are not conducive to the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women and violate women's human rights. Please provide information on actions taken to address the above concerns in light of the Committee's recommendations in paragraphs 72, 74 and 76 of its previous concluding comments and indicate what has been the impact of such actions.

Health

22. Please provide details regarding the status of implementation of the structural reform in the health sector adopted by the Government in September 2000, as noted in the report (English version, p. 48; French version, p. 61), and its implications for women.

23. The report (English version, pp. 52-53; French version, pp. 65-66) states that the national survey conducted in 1999 in every commune in Algeria "provided useful elements for strengthening the national programme to combat maternal and perinatal mortality". The report further states (English version, p. 56; French version, p. 69) that neonatal mortality "currently accounts for 60 per cent of all deaths among children". Further to the 1999 survey, what measures is the Government implementing to improve maternal health and combat perinatal and neonatal mortality?

24. Kindly provide details on the progress made with regard to implementation of the policy objectives and strategies for 2001-2010 related to reproductive health prepared by the National Population Committee (English version, p. 50; French version, p. 63). Has women's access to reproductive health services, including family planning and referral services, increased since the policy was put in place?

25. Please provide details on the measures undertaken under the programme to combat sexually transmitted diseases and AIDS, particularly with regard to the main areas of focus for the period 2002-20

