and national consultations, several initiatives have been undertaken. Over the last few years, particular pieces of legislation were amended or passed in seeking women's empowerment. These initiatives include the amendment of the Criminal Code to provide for the offence of marital rape; to rationalize the penalties for the offence of carnal knowledge of a female child; provide a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment for habitual sex offenders and makes provisions for the treatment and reporting of sex offenders. Furthermore, the law now recognizes common law unions as couples living together for five

Madam Chair, we recognize that despite the many achievements, much more needs to be done in our efforts to attain equality and equity in Belize and to provide women with full access to justice. Limited human and financial resources are a major challenge particularly when discussions about women's issues are now being debated against the perception of men at risk or marginalized. Limited monitoring and evaluation mechanisms also pose a challenge and the availability of data disaggregated by sex and the analysis of such, are concerns.

Traditional stereotypes, attitudes and expectations of society continue to pose challenges. Women's daily reality of survival after domestic abuse continues to be a major issue. Once women leave the shelter they are often unable to support themselves and their children financially. Often this is a common reason why they return into their
