

including marital rape, have been regulated. These pieces of legislation not only exemplify the efforts of the State to address women's advancement but also constitute a part of the State's