As the United States continues to bring new energy to these issues, it will review the binding global pacts that help empower women. That includes the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Convention on the Rights of the Child. We will remain committed to working with the international community to promote many of the principles embodied in these conventions.

	trip to Asia, "It is important to raise the role of women on an ongoing basis. All women should exercise their rights to be fully functioning, productive citizens." In order to do so, governments, NGOs, the private sector, and international organizations such as the United Nations must work

	PEPFAR has been a remarkable success story in its first five years. A key reason has been our commitment to incorporating gender awareness into its programs, including acknowledging the nivotal role of men. Thus far the United States has:
