(28 February 2001, New York)

Mr Chairman.....

I would like to congratulate you on your assumption of the chair of the fifty-fifth session of the Commission on the Status of Women.

My delegation aligns itself with the statement made by the distinguished Representative of Argentina, on behalf of the Group of 77 and China.

Nepal welcomes the newly launched United Nations Platform for Gender Equality and Empowerment of Women, UN-Women...

Mr. Chairman,

The Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action remains the most comprehensive global policy framework for gender equality and empowerment of women. The Millennium Declaration includes gender equality and empowerment as one of its eight goals. Important international human rights instruments have been adopted for ending discrimination against women. However, much remains to be done...

In line with the Beijing Platform, Nepal attaches great importance to the empowerment of women. We believe that we cannot achieve sustainable peace and development without ensuring equal rights to women.

The Constituent Assembly of Nepal has decided to constitute a gender assembly as one of the most inclusive assemblies in the world with one third representation of women.

Mr. Chairman,

Nepal has adopted a rights-based approach to social, economic and political empowerment of women, ensuring gender equality and gender mainstreaming, one of our top priorities as enshrined in the Interim Constitution of Nepal. Nepal considers gender equality a basic human right, fundamental value and an issue of social justice. Nepal women, like men, have been targeted to ensure promotional and inclusive representation in the political State, including by military, navy and police.

Mechanical mechanisms relating to gender budgeting have been initiated which take into account the advancement of women in the programs launched by the Government in all sectors. Similarly, ~~Women's~~ Women in the formulation and implementation of fiscal development programs has been institutionalized.

Working with the civil society and other stakeholders, micro-credit programs, education, higher education, programs and food for education programs targeted to the girl and women have been initiated and implemented at the community level.

Despite ~~various~~ ~~various~~ various affirmative measures and capacity constraints stand in the way of full implementation of the programs related to women empowerment. International cooperation and support measures go a long way in further strengthening national programs in our countries. Nepal has taken several legal, administrative and other policy measures to bring to an end all forms of discrimination and violence against women. Even laws have been amended to make them compatible to gender equality. Human Trafficking Control Act has been enacted. The Legislative-Parliament has also enacted Domestic Violence (Crime and Punishment) Act.

The Government has implemented and launched the National Action Plan for the effective implementation of the United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and 1820 which signifies the high priority that the Government accorded to the full and equal participation of women in peace, security and sustainable development of the country.

National Women Commission has been working as an autonomous statutory body for the protection and promotion of the rights and interests of women, including their effective inclusion in the development mainstream. The commission has recommended legislative and investigatory powers.

Despite significant resource constraints, Nepal has made impressive progress in reducing the maternal mortality rate from 539 per 100,000 now to 220 per 100,000 now. It is anticipated that it will substantially in the next few years.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, my delegation reiterates its firm commitment to BPEA. We believe women's paramount role in building a peaceful, stable, democratic and prosperous world.

Thank you!
