Advisor to the Minister of Social Security and Labour

of the Republic of Lithuania

at the 55 session of the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women

New York, 29 February 2012

Madam Chair, excellences, distinguished delegates,

Lithuania is grateful for the opportunity to address the Commission on the Status of Women at this 55th session. Lithuania delegation fully agrees with the statement made by Lithuania, Belarus, Bulgaria, the European Union and reaffirms its commitments to further activities towards empowerment of rural women, their regular economic opportunities, and opportunities to participate in decision making, and towards promoting women's rights in political, economic, cultural, social, education and other fields.

Lithuania highly appreciates the work of United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, as well as the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), which coordinates, monitors and empowers of rural women. We pay special attention to the effective implementation of women's rights referring first of all to CEDAW Millennium development goals and Beijing Platform for Action. The results of our efforts were presented in the first 'periodic' report, submitted to the CEDAW Committee this year. Seeking to contribute more to the activities of CEDAW, Lithuania has established a working group on women's discrimination and striving for the gender equality between women and men. Lithuania has proposed its candidate to this respect CEDAW Committee. Furthermore, targeting rural women, Lithuania actively participates in the Governing Body of the Working Party on Women and the Family in Rural Development of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization's European Commission on Agriculture.

Madam Chair,

It is difficult to overestimate women's contribution in rural development and agriculture, food security and eradication of hunger, in climate change and sustainable development, as well as in a number of other areas.

Over entire Lithuania history women working in their family farms, being the breadwinners along with men, have always been a source of national culture, language, national identity and heritage.

In Lithuania, rural women make about 50 percent of rural population. They are active in self-employment, they establish their small and medium-sized businesses, even in the areas not so common for women. More and more women living in rural areas are interested in career possibilities in the areas alternative to agriculture. Women are active community leaders and play active role in promoting implementation of social, non-profit initiatives. One of the largest associations of rural women – Lithuanian Association of women Farmers – actively contributes to promoting entrepreneurship among young women, promoting rural women's alternative crafts, reduction of social exclusion as well as improving social partnership and the quality of life in rural areas, including the most necessary services, cultural and community life.

A number of developments have essentially contributed to the improvement of situation of rural women in comparison to urban women. We've developed information technologies, such as easy access to the Internet in rural areas, use of mobile phones by majority of population. This ensures rapid delivery of information, opportunity to watch cultural events both at national level and over the world, so contributing to the quality of public and cultural life of local communities, including easier access to various services, for instance, bank and postal services. Besides, we recently adopted law on protection against domestic violence which provides protection of victims of violence and punishment of perpetrators everywhere, including rural areas, where access to the police centres was limited.

However, despite of all positive results achieved regional disparities in Lithuania still exist. Situation of rural women in comparison to that of urban women still differs in terms of social health and child care services as well as services of elderly and family members. Relevant infrastructure is less developed in the rural areas too.

Therefore we will continue further our actions targeting rural women. A lot is done and lots remain to be done.

Thank you Madam Chair.
