STATEMENT BY MS. ZENIAH JAHAR
ON AGENDA ITEM 3 (a)(i): THE EMPOWERMENT OF RURAL WOMEN AND THEIR ROLE IN POVERTY AND HUNGER ERADICATION, DEVELOPMENT AND CURRENT CHALLENGES, 57TH SESSION OF THE COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN, NEW YORK 20 FEBRUARY 2012

Madam Chair,

1. My delegation aligns itself with the statement delivered by Algeria on behalf of Group G77 and China. We would also like to express our appreciation to the organisation of the High-level Panel, Table and the expert panel discussions which have clearly framed the agenda on rural women.

Madam Chair,

2. For many generations, women have played a pivotal role in poverty and hunger eradication in the rural areas. Their multiple roles in economic activities and managing household economic resources are crucial in improving the household's economic status. The importance of rural women was even recognised in mind in the 2010 UN General Plenary Meeting on Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) where Member States had highlighted that women as essential agents for enhancing sustainable human security and rural development. However, the contribution of rural women does not commensurate with their share in land ownership and access to productive resources.

3. Women own only two percent of the land and receive one percent agricultural credit. In addition, only five percent of agricultural extension resources are directed to women. Projects aiming to eradicate poverty, more often than not, view the poor rural woman merely as recipients of development... but a fundamental participant.

4. To address the challenges faced by women in rural areas, it is imperative for us to begin recognising rural women as potential human capital who can contribute significantly to national economic growth and development. This requires providing an enabling environment for rural women to realise their full potential.

Madam Chair,

5. Through the years, agriculture sector has helped Malaysia in reducing incidence of poverty from 49.3 percent in 1970 to 3.8 percent in 2010. Many rural areas poverty was eradicated at the end of 2010. This significant achievement had enabled Malaysia to achieve the target of MDG 1 before 2015.

Madam Chair,

6. The Malaysian Government views rural women as potential primary capital. Hence, the empowerment and well being of rural women are of a great concern to the Government. In this regard, various measures have been undertaken to ensure rural women enjoy equal opportunities in which their concerns and needs are integrated and mainstreamed. In recognition of women's contribution in developing settlement land under the special rural economy, The Land (Development Areas) Act was amended to allow wives and ex-wives for joint ownership with the husbands of the developed land. Prior to the amendment, only the husband's name was entitled to ownership.

7. In enhancing economic empowerment of rural women, financial assistance are provided by the financial institutions such as Agro-Bank, SME Bank and the Amanah Ikhlak Malaysia (a model based on the Grameen Bank). In addition, entrepreneurial development training is also being provided. A special entrepreneurship training programme for women was introduced in 2009 for Low-income Households with the aim to train and develop focused and willing entrepreneurs by the end of 2012.

8. In addition, to equip rural women with IT-based knowledge and to encourage them to utilize IT facilities for their socio-economic development, Rural Internet Centres ('RKC') were established throughout the country.

Madam Chair,

9. Eliminating violence against women is one of the priorities of the Government. Hence, the Domestic Violence Act No.34 was amended and passed by the Parliament in December 2011. With the amendments, emotional and psychological injuries are defined in domestic violence and claims can be filed by victims for compensation for emotional and psychological injuries.

10. In conclusion, my delegation wishes to reiterate that Malaysia strongly believes that investing in women is smart economics and a full recognition of women's role in rural development would greatly contribute to poverty reduction and rural prosperity and ultimately, would help move towards sustainable development.

11. Malaysia, as committed to the full realisation of the Beijing Declaration and related Platform for Action, CEDAW and the Millennium Development Goals, will continue to contribute meaningfully towards discussions for the review of the 50th Session of the Commission on the Status of Women.

I thank you Madam Chair.
