

REPUBLIC OF ZAMBIA

Permanent Mission of Zambia to the United Nations, 32 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022
Tel: (212) 888-5273 Fax: (212) 888-5273 E-mail: zambia@un.org

Statement by Honorable Eusebio Kibuka, MP Deputy Minister of Gender and Child Development

Statement delivered during the Gender and Child Development Policy Review
Platform for Action and Outcome of the Twenty-third Special Session of the General Assembly

2nd March 2019

REPUBLIC OF ALGERIA

Ministry of Health and Social Welfare
Algeria

Ministry of Health and Social Welfare
Algeria

Ministry of Health and Social Welfare
Algeria

Chairperson,
Your Excellencies,
Distinguished Delegates.

My delegation wishes to congratulate you on your election and the manner in which you are conducting the affairs of this Session. My delegation, through its members, is fully supportive of you and your bureau in the discharge of your duties.

Chairperson,

My Government remains committed to the implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action and the Outcome of the 19th Special Session of the General Assembly, as evidenced by the new administrative structures resolved at our biennial international instruments on gender to which we are party. I am particularly pleased to announce that my Government has not only prioritized the domestication of gender into national instruments on gender to which it is party, but has already initiated practical measures to facilitate the domestication provisions of the CEDAW because we view this instrument as a comprehensive bill of rights for women.

Government has, in this regard, conducted a CEDAW Mapping Exercise which has identified the various provisions that have been incorporated into national legislation and those that have not. This process has enabled Government to develop a clear road map for systematically domesticating the provisions of the CEDAW to facilitate its implementation. It is our strong belief that once this instrument is domesticated, it will have a multiplier effect on the advancement of women in Zambia.

Chairperson,

Another issue that continues to pose a threat to the advancement of women in Zambia is the continued occurrence of gender-based violence. Zambia has responded to this issue by enacting the Anti-Gender-Based Violence Act of 2011 which provides for the protection and support for survivors of gender-based violence. The Act also provides for the establishment of shelters for survivors for CRV as a primary responsibility of government. While we acknowledge that the enactment of the Anti-Gender-Based Violence Act is a step in our fight to eliminate gender based violence, we are fully cognisant of the need to provide adequate resource for its implementation. Consequently, my government has re-established the United Nations System in line with the One UN approach. We have also increased our resources for its implementation. This is in line with our realization that for a long time Governments, Cooperating Partners and Civil Society Organizations have spent huge amounts of money to develop policies and implementation plans without setting aside resources for implementation.

My Government has now moved from its ad hoc approach and we want to urge our cooperating partners to support Zambia's efforts by plugging resource into implementation. This is what will yield the results that we so much desire.

Chairperson,

Government also recognises the importance of women's economic empowerment as a catalyst for women's advancement. Despite the potential that women have to contribute to socio-economic development, they are largely not able to tap into financial, human and other productive resources.

In order to facilitate the economic empowerment of rural women, government has established the

Citizen's Economic Empowerment Fund under the Citizen's Economic Empowerment

Commission. The fund provide for affirmative action in favour of women by allocating 30 percent of the resources to women entrepreneurs. In addition to this Fund, Government has, in the 2012 financial year provided $2 million dollar and 2.5 million Kwacha to the Gender and

Child Development Division and Ministry of Community Development, Mother and Child Health to facilitate access to start-up capital, procure labour saving technologies and provide training to women entrepreneurs in business entrepreneurship.

Chairperson,

Our desire to implement the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action has not been without challenges and our challenges remain that of finding ways of institutionalising and accountability for gender mainstreaming. However, together with our stakeholders, we will take on these challenges head on. I thank you!